MEET

Solving the murder mystery of "Who Killed David Dime"

Presented in a highly sensational photoplay as the Met feature "Princess of the Sea" play in from the dramatic story of John T. Mervine and is called "The Murder of the Mute," otherwise "The River Alley Mystery." Daily appears on "Aktion-Kirkle," a detective who develops wonderful skills in following clues to their favorite history. A charming love story runs throughout the action of the play. All and all it is a most pleasing situation and is very happy. Other features at the Met for the week-end showings are

"The Sign of the Cross" and "The Adventures of J. Rufus Wallingford,

Sunday, "The Seventh Noon," will lead the program followed by "The Diamond from the Sky" and "The Broken Coin."

OVERHOLSER

At the Overholser tonight the company will appear again in "Yosemite," which will run Saturday and Sunday, matinee and night performances. The theater will again see Miss Huntington in "Yosemite" when she reaches heights that would be impossible for an actress whose usual roles have been in a lighter genre. There are many other attractions in "Yosemite" and the company is given a high grade showing. The production next week will be the feature

"The Princess of the Sea" and

"The Adventures of J. Rufus Wallingford," regarded as the best in which they have been seen in this city.

TOLLY

There are no dull moments in the production of "Tolly" today and tomorrow. Three great acts of comedy provide many laughs and the scenes are so well staged that the audience is enabled to see the two great stars—Hubert and Worth in "Colorado," a remarkably fine feature picture in five reel. The picture is a comedy and is a most interesting
